

Development of Deaf youth in Samoa

Volunteering in the Pacific; Katrina Lancaster talks about her time in Samoa as Empowerment Officer for the Deaf

Colin Allen interviewed Katrina Lancaster about her recent work as a volunteer in Samoa.

Katrina was a role-model

What made you decide to volunteer in Samoa?

Firstly for a practical reason; I was studying for a Bachelor of Community Welfare (International Social Development) and overseas experience was compulsory for my degree. Secondly, I wanted to make a difference in people's lives. We have so much in Australia that we just take for granted, while other countries have almost nothing.

When you left here for Samoa, what did you imagine it might be like?

I was volunteering with VIDA, Volunteering for International Development from Australia, who matched me up with a school called SENESE (for children with all kinds of disabilities) in Samoa. VIDA gave me some training in managing difficult situations, so that gave me some ideas of what I might face. I imagined beautiful beaches, but I was also worried about communication – talking to Deaf and hearing people was going to be a challenge. As it turned out, both the good and the difficult were true!

What was your first impression when you arrived? Did you panic?

My first thought was "It's so hot here!", and yes, I panicked because no one met me at the airport and I had no information about where to go! It all worked out fine, however, and the people were so welcoming. Then I just thought, Where do I start? What do I do first?

So through the 5 months of your time there, what was the most rewarding?

Role-modelling for young Deaf students. I saw a lot of young Deaf girls develop their confidence over the time I was there. I was the first long-term Deaf volunteer they'd ever had, so the girls were so excited.

Samoa Sign Language. Watching the language skills of school staff improve, and seeing Deaf students grow in their confidence was great. They also started to relax and let go of some signed English influence. About 2 months before

I left, the community in Samoa started discussing what name they would give the Samoan sign language, which was exciting.

Personal growth. For myself, I have learnt a lot – I'm more tolerant, and people keep telling me I'm more relaxed!

And what was the pinnacle of achievement during your time in Samoa?

Picking just one is hard! I co-wrote a successful application for a grant of 80,000 Euro from The European Commission's Delegation for the Pacific. The grant will be used for leadership training for the Deaf club and language acquisition training for the SENESE school.

However, the best reward was seeing those young girls develop so much in their confidence, just from seeing a Deaf woman as a role model. Also seeing the Deaf people starting to take leadership in the Deaf club – that was a big step and it was a privilege to be there to see it.

What would you say about the Deaf Society of NSW in this process?

I can't say enough how much I appreciated the Deaf Society's support. They held my job for me until I came back. They also gave me study leave throughout my degree, and even when I was in Samoa I contacted people here for help finding resources.

Would you recommend the volunteering experience for others?

Yes, I think everyone should see what I saw, and have that experience.

From the CEO

Welcome to the Deaf Society's new look bulletin "NSW Deaf Herald". I hope you enjoy reading our latest news.

The Deaf Society moved to our new office at 69 Phillip Street, Parramatta in late 2009. We were very lucky to find suitable office space which already had a lot of office furniture in it. This means we saved a lot of money and the office has nice furniture and equipment. We were also very lucky to get some government funding ($183,000) which helped us set up two new training rooms.

The Epstein-Schiller Centre and the Andrew Rogers Training Room were officially opened by the Hon Peter Primrose, Minister for Disability Services on 17 June 2010. If you haven't had a chance to visit our new premises, please come to our next Open Day on Friday 15 October.

Minister Peter Primrose officially opens our office

The Board of the Deaf Society has been very busy with the development of the new Strategic Plan for 2010-2013 (See page 6). The Board is establishing sub-committees to review policies and procedures and improve operations. The Board has also established a sub-committee to start planning events to celebrate the Deaf Society's Centenary in 2013.

We were sad to hear of the passing of Ken Tribe on 16 July. Ken was most well known in Sydney for his contributions to music and the arts, but at the Deaf Society we knew him as a board member for 40 years from 1942, including 14 years as president. He also helped to set up the Australian Caption Centre and was involved in supporting the Australian Theatre of the Deaf. The Kenneth Tribe Scholarship Fund which provides support to Deaf and hard of hearing people studying, is named in his honour and is one of the many ways his legacy to the community survives.

On 28 July we farewelled Jennifer Clements, our Information Officer who retired after 16 years working with DEN and the Deaf Society. Ken Deacon made a presentation on behalf of the Board to thank Jennifer for her contributions to our work at a special lunch and the staff organised a morning tea celebration to say goodbye and good luck. We wish Jennifer all the best for her retirement.

There is lots of news in the following articles which will keep you up to date with what is happening at the Deaf Society. Please contact me at the Parramatta Office if you want to find out more about our work and plans for the future.

Editorial

Welcome to the first edition of the NSW Deaf Herald, including the Spring 2010 edition of Silent Messenger. We are very excited to be starting a brand new bulletin from the Deaf Society. We are also excited that at the very heart of this new publication is a very old NSW Deaf Community tradition – Silent Messenger.

In this edition, you can read about the Deaf Society's new Strategic Plan for 2010 - 2013, see what projects are happening in and around the Deaf Community, read about Katrina Lancaster's time in Samoa, and browse the upcoming events (page 10). You can also catch up on news and information from each Deaf Society department in articles by the department managers.

One exciting project in recent months has been the project on 'Culturally Deaf Residents in Nursing Homes and Hostels'. The Deaf Society received funding from Deafness Foundation to run the project. Ida Rogers has been researching the barriers for Deaf people in nursing homes and hostels and creating a fantastic online information kit for nursing home staff. We hope the kit will be used across the country to train staff so they can make nursing homes and hostels more Deaf friendly. The project will be completed by the end of this year.

The Deaf Society also has some fantastic opportunities for you to get involved, take leadership, or get support. The Anne McRae Technology Scheme provides a way for Deaf and hard of hearing people to get computers at a low cost. The A.M. Houen Community Grants Program invites applications for grants towards projects which benefit the Deaf Community. The Kenneth Tribe Scholarship Fund supports Deaf and hard of hearing people who are studying. For full details and criteria for grants, visit our website:

If you wish to submit any articles or information for publication, you are encouraged to email us at herald@deafsociety.com. Publication will be at the discretion of the editor.

We are looking forward to receiving your feedback and suggestions for our new bulletin – NSW Deaf Herald.

Happy reading,

Employment Service

Written by Andrew Wiltshire, Manager, Employment Service

The Employment Service provides a Disability Employment Service (DES) program funded by the Department of Education, Employment and Workplace Relations (DEEWR) which offers a range of ways to break down the barriers to employment for Deaf and hard of hearing people.

The new Deaf Society Strategic Plan started on 1st July 2010 and we are focusing on the new strategies and services to give Deaf and hard of hearing people better services. Some new services are being planned and will be launched over the next few months. The first big change is that the Employment Service staff are now using a new operating system so we can spend less time on administration and more time on assisting our clients with finding employment.

During Monday 20th – Wednesday 22nd September 2010, we will be having our annual audit to make sure that our services follow the 12 Disability Standards and some of our clients have been approached to participate. The auditors will be visiting both Parramatta and Newcastle offices as well and we look forward to receiving feedback from our auditors and our clients so that we can continue to improve our services – for you!

In the past, the Employment Service was only available to Deaf or hard of hearing people who were already receiving Centrelink benefits. Through our community consultations in February 2010 we found out that the Deaf community wanted the Deaf Society to offer services for those who are already working. So, in our new Strategic Plan we plan two new services; Career Advice sessions (for example, advice on resume writing, cover letters, interview techniques), and an Employment Walk In service that will start in 2011.

Did you know about these two services?

JOB IN JEOPARDY

Did you know that the DES program allows us to provide Job in Jeopardy assistance for a person who is likely to lose their employment in the immediate future as a result of their injury, disability or health condition?
This means if your employer told you that you will lose your job because of your disability, you can contact us and we will work with you on an individual program to assist you to keep your job.

EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE FUND (EAF)

When you get a job interview, you can ask for an Auslan interpreter through EAF, for as many job interviews you get until you get a job.
Your employer can receive up to $6,000 worth of Auslan interpreting in your workplace each year!
The Workplace Modifications Scheme allows you and/or your employer to modify your workplace so that you can participate equally. This could include assistive technologies, mirrors, TTY's and so on.

Deaf Education Network

Written by John O'Neill
Manager, Deaf Education Network

"Out with the old and in with the new"

Welcome to the first edition of the DEN news section of our new bulletin. The first student newsletter was distributed on a monthly basis to 40 students. Today over 900 of our students past and present are subscribed to our Student Newsletter.

Our first newsletter was released in August 2005 and was the inspiration of Natalie Kull when she worked with DEN. Here is the first paragraph from that first Student Newsletter and the reasons why Natalie was determined to get information out to the students.

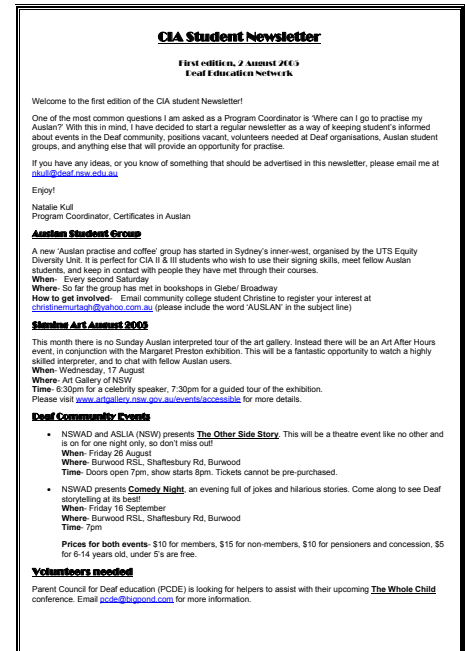

"Welcome to the first edition of the CIA student Newsletter!"

One of the most common questions I am asked as a Program Coordinator is 'Where can I go to practice my Auslan?' With this in mind, I have decided to start a regular newsletter as a way of keeping students informed about events in the Deaf Community, positions vacant, volunteers needed at Deaf organisations, Auslan student groups, and anything else that will provide an opportunity for practice."

And so our Student Newsletter was born...

Anna Nardi took over the newsletter in July 2009 and gave it her own special brand. The newsletter was now being distributed bi-monthly as the numbers started to grow. Anna is now delighted to know that our students will be getting lots more information about the Deaf Community in our new bulletin.

First edition of Auslan Student Newsletter

Since that first newsletter was sent out we have seen a lot of changes for DEN and the Deaf Society.

DEN merged with the Deaf Society in August 2007 and moved from North Rocks to Macquarie Street, Parramatta. We have added the Diploma of Auslan to our suite of courses. We have introduced an Auslan Only Weekend 3, and the Deaf Weekend Retreat which is an assessment-based component of the Diploma course. Kate Matairavula joined the Accredited Auslan program, and successfully combined and reduced the amount of assessment from Certificate II up to the Diploma, much to the relief of our students. DEN was involved in the successful review and rewriting of the Diploma of Auslan Curriculum with Kangan Institute in Melbourne. From January 2011 we will be working with a more flexible Auslan Curriculum but we have a lot of work to do before then to update all our teaching resources.

We were one of the lucky recipients of the Infrastructure Funding from the Government and we now have two new state-of-the-art training rooms to run our Accredited Auslan and Deaf Learner classes. Both rooms are also equipped to support and assist the Deaf Community in a range of other courses and services.

It is with mixed feelings we say goodbye to the Student Newsletter but our aim is to give you all the information you need about the Deaf Community in one place.

We would like to say a big thank you to Natalie Kull for her insight and to Anna Nardi for keeping that inspiration alive.

We bid farewell and a big thank you to everyone who has subscribed to our student newsletter and we look forward to your continued support for our new bulletin; "NSW Deaf Herald".

Sign Language Communications NSW

Written by Jasmine Rozsa
Manager, SLC NSW

2010 is flying by – already we have seen some fantastic professional development workshops including “Adding to Your Interpreter’s Toolkit” presented by Marcel Leneham and “The Dreaded Fingerspelling Readback” presented by Jemina Napier. We’ve seen the ASLIA National Conference (ANC) come and go, the Auslan interpreted performance of Wicked (well done Gerry Shearim and Chevoy Sweeney – great job!), and we’ve seen 4 new interns grow in the John Ferris Interpreter Internship Program.

We’ve seen the development and release of a new Deaf Society of NSW Strategic Plan 2010–2013 with all kinds of new strategies that I’m sure you will see being implemented in the near future. New and exciting things coming up include a new revamped intern program for 2011 – keep your eyes open for more information soon!

The Deafblind workshop’s interpreting team – July 2010

SLC recently undertook a national survey of interpreters to get their feedback on what they like about working for SLC and on what they think could be improved. The results of the survey are currently being compiled and any outcomes from the survey will be shared with our interpreters before the year is out.

SLC NSW recently provided 22 interpreters and 2 notetakers for a Deafblind Assertiveness workshop – the highest number of interpreters ever provided for one booking. This proved a challenging day for all but a great day for clients and interpreters alike.

Government departments add Auslan to their websites

The Translation Service at the Deaf Society has been operating under the SLC NSW brand and we have seen a number of government departments make their English content more accessible to the Deaf Community. Some of these departments include:

- The Office of Industrial Relations
(www.industrialrelations.nsw.gov.au/In_another_language/Auslan.html)
- Department of Broadband Communications and the Digital Economy (www.staysmartonline.gov.au/home/videos/stay_smart_online)
- NSW Health Care Complaints Commission
(www.hccc.nsw.gov.au/Information/Audio-Visual-Information-in-sign-language/default.aspx)

SLC NSW would like to congratulate these departments and hopes that this encourages more government departments to do the same.

Videos made for Department of Broadband, Communications and the Digital Economy (left) and NSW Health Care Complaints Commission (right)

Did you know?

- In the last financial year SLC NSW provided over $10,000 of No Fee interpreting for funerals and private legal and financial appointments.
- In the last financial year SLC NSW fulfilled 93.49% of requests for interpreters.
- SLC NSW has over 100 working interpreters on our register.
- SLC NSW regularly sends out surveys to our Deaf and hearing clients to get feedback about our service and their interpreter.

Message from the President - Rachael Ellis

Deaf Australia (NSW) is excited to be working with the Deaf Society of NSW in the new Silent Messenger. The Silent Messenger was first started by The Adult Deaf Association of NSW in 1906 and later published by the Deaf Society of NSW. In 1989 it was given to the NSW Association of the Deaf to publish with the support of the Deaf Society. Deaf Australia (NSW) and the Deaf Society Executive Team had a meeting and discussed the new Deaf Society bulletin and it was agreed that the Silent Messenger would be in the new bulletin. We feel this is a great idea because it will make sure the Silent Messenger is on time, looks professional and has information that is not repeated. We look forward to working with the Deaf Society and thank them for including us in their new publication.

Ai - Live

You may have seen that the company Ai-Media has been getting some publicity recently. They launched their captioning product Ai-Live at the Deafness Forum National Deafness Summit in April. They were on ABC TV's The New Inventors in June. They were also in the Sydney Morning Herald (SMH) in July. Deaf Australia (NSW) welcomes any new technology that makes education for deaf children more accessible. Our concern with the publicity about Ai-Live is that the full information about how it works has not been given. It seems to show that sign language interpreting is no longer needed. It seems to show that any deaf child can use it. We have concerns when it seems to show that it can be used for communication. We feel it is good for understanding what the teacher is saying but not for communicating in a class. We have responded to the article that was in the SMH and our letter was printed as well as their response to our letter.

National Week of Deaf People – 19th and 21st October

Deaf Australia (NSW), Deaf Society of NSW and PCDE have been working with Helen Westwood from NSW Parliament to plan a series of exciting events to celebrate "Rapprochement of Cultures". "Rapprochement of Cultures" means bringing together different cultures. We are planning events for Tuesday 19th and Thursday 21st October. Please put the dates in your calendar. A large group of Deaf people coming will show NSW Parliament that we are interested and want to be included in government. Events will include interpreted tours of Parliament, events for school students and a panel discussion. NSW Parliament is a lovely building, a fascinating mix of old and new with great art on the walls. It is well worth seeing if you have not already.

"Deaf Days" Night of Entertainment – 7th November

Every year we aim to put on a night of theatre and drama for the community. This is a way of expressing Auslan and our culture in a creative way as well as giving you a few laughs we hope! Rehearsals are already underway. Again please keep the evening free for the 7th November at Burwood RSL. Funds raised will go towards the cost of the "Crossing Borders" Youth Camp in January 2011.

Deafhood and Deaf-gain

Have you ever thought about the words "deafness", "deaf" and "hearing loss" and what they mean? Do you think they are positive terms? Do you think they say anything about the benefits of being deaf? Is being deaf only ever a lack of something?

Those words are medical words. They mean something is missing or not working. For many of us, being deaf is more than just something not working. In the area of Deaf Cultural Studies people like Paddy Ladd from the UK and H-Dirksen Bauman and Joseph Murray from USA have suggested other words that are more empowering for Deaf people. Paddy Ladd came up with the word "Deafhood" and H-Dirksen Bauman and Joseph Murray came up with the word "Deaf-gain".

What about instead of talking about our "deafness" we talked about our "Deafhood"? Deafhood means a process. As soon as we become deaf we go through a process of learning how to live with our deafness. We have to constantly adjust and learn new ways of dealing with a hearing world. Our deaf identity is formed and matured. If our hearing loss changes over time, new adjustments are made to our view of ourselves and the world around us. This process is like a journey. Just like motherhood and childhood are also journeys through which growth happens.

What about instead of talking about “hearing loss”, we talked about “Deaf-gain”? Could our difference be a gain not a lack? We have been taught to think that being different is bad or not normal. What if the difference being deaf gave us was something to celebrate rather than something to fix up? Being deaf gives us cognitive, creative and cultural diversity. We have skills like increased spatial cognition, speed of generating mental images, peripheral vision, and tactile acuity. These things contribute to humanity and create biodiversity.

Can you imagine if we started to see people saying “My deafhood started when I was 3 years old” or “until I became involved in the Deaf community my deafhood was very lonely” or “if I was successful in getting this job, my Deaf-gain would really benefit your company”!

Emergency Contact Details:

Emergency Call 106

The 106 emergency relay service enables people who are deaf or have a hearing or speech impairment to contact emergency services through their TTY (also known as a teletypewriter or textphone) or modem. It is a dedicated text-based emergency relay-service with direct access to fire, police and ambulance services. It is available 24 hours a day, everyday.

How it works:

- Dial 106. This is a toll-free number. You will be asked if you want police, ambulance or fire (type FFF).
- The relay officer will stay on line to relay your conversation with the emergency service. Confirm your location.
- Do not hang up. Wait for a reply from the emergency service.
- If you wish to use speak and read (voice carry over) or type and listen (hearing carry over) let the relay officer know to set up the correct mode.
- This service is not available via speak and listen (speech to speech relay). These callers can dial 1800 555 727 and then ask for Triple Zero (000) or dial '000' directly.
- This service cannot be accessed by text message (SMS) on a mobile phone.

NRMA Roadside Assistance

24 hours a day, country and metro areas - deaf / hard of hearing text to 0437 13 11 11.
